BISHOP LAWRENCE, WHO OPPOSES ASTOR WEDDING

NORTHEAST HARBOR, Mass., Aug. 9.—Four of the highest dignitaries of the Episcopal Church in the United States, Bishop David H. Greer of New York, Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts, Bishop William Crockett of Albany, and Bishop John A. Andrew of New England, met today to discuss the proposed marriage of Colonel John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeline Foss.

Every one of the four bishops is a personal friend of the bride and groom, and the fact that they are meeting today to discuss the proposed marriage is a sign of the high regard in which they hold the couple.

By BISHOP GREER. Best assured of one thing is that the Episcopal Church in the United States is not in a position to give its sanction to the proposed marriage of Colonel Astor and Miss Foss.

By BISHOP DOANE. I consider the proposed marriage of the young girl to Colonel Astor a positive outrage against public decency. I do not believe it is the duty of the Episcopal Church to give its sanction to such a union.

By BISHOP LAWRENCE. For my part, I shall insist on a strict observance of the canon law. I shall not give my sanction to the proposed marriage of Colonel Astor and Miss Foss.

By BISHOP MACKAY-SMITH. My attitude toward the marriage of Colonel Astor and Miss Foss is one of opposition. I do not believe it is the duty of the Episcopal Church to give its sanction to such a union.

By BISHOP LAWRENCE. For my part, I shall insist on a strict observance of the canon law. I shall not give my sanction to the proposed marriage of Colonel Astor and Miss Foss.

ALL BALTIMORE CHEERS TOGO

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 9.—Greeted by city officials and thousands of citizens of Baltimore, Admiral Togo, hero of the Russo-Japanese war, accompanied by his wife and family, left for his home in Japan today. The admiral, who is 65 years of age, was born in Japan and came to the United States in 1870. He was a member of the United States navy and served in the Spanish-American war. He was promoted to admiral in 1905 and was appointed commander of the Japanese fleet in 1908. He was killed in action during the Russo-Japanese war in 1905.

MISS KUBEL'S FATHER HOLDS MORE LETTERS FROM CONGRESSMAN

Photograph of Florence Kubel is one that Congressman Lafferty admitted he kept for father's sake to serve as a reminder of his daughter.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Representative A. W. Lafferty, of Oregon, whose letter to Miss Florence Kubel seeking her acquaintance, called down on him the ire of the young woman's parents, today made him regret the report from Portland, Oregon, that he was a scoundrel. The letter, which he wrote to the father of the young woman, was a request for a photograph of his daughter. The father, Mr. Kubel, is a well-known merchant in Portland. The letter was published in a local newspaper, and the father's reaction was reported in the press.

POISONED DOG HE COULDN'T BUY

Boston, Aug. 9.—A dog which his owner had named "Daisy" and which he had bought for $100, was found dead in a basket on the steps of his home today. The dog was found by a neighbor and was taken to a veterinarian. The veterinarian found that the dog had been poisoned with strychnine. The owner, who is a well-known merchant in Boston, is now looking for the person who poisoned the dog. The dog was a small, white, fluffy dog.

FIREMAN HURT IN LYNN HOUSE FIRE

LYNN, Aug. 9.—A fire in a house at 125 North Street, Lynn, today killed a fireman and injured another. The fire started in the kitchen and spread to the living room. The fireman who was killed was a well-known member of the fire department. The fire was caused by a gas stove. The house was a two-story brick house.

City Hall Notes

Commissioner Burke will close up the lighting situation at the city hall. The city hall is a large, ornate building in the center of Boston. The lighting situation has been a problem for some time. The commissioner is planning to install new lights and to repair the old ones. The city hall is the seat of the city government.

83 DROWNED AS SHIPS CRASH

GERMANY, Aug. 9.—Eighty-three persons lost their lives today in a collision between the German steamship "Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse" and the British steamship "Hawke". The ships collided in the North Sea. The "Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse" was a large, fast ship. The "Hawke" was a smaller ship. The collision caused both ships to sink. The survivors were rescued by a nearby ship.

MIND YOUR EYE

Many of the people who are suffering from eye trouble are not aware of the fact that they can be cured. The eye is a very delicate organ and it is important to take care of it. There are many different causes of eye trouble, but most of them can be cured. It is important to see a doctor if you have any eye trouble. The doctor will examine your eyes and tell you what is wrong. The doctor will also tell you how to take care of your eyes.

"British Wealth and Irish Poverty"

Mr. C. O'Connell Galvin, recently returned from the British Isles where he went as a special commissioner of the Sunday AMERICAN to investigate conditions there, will tell why England is rich and Ireland poor in next Sunday's AMERICAN!

Silk Hat Harry's Divorce Suit

SILK HAT HARRY'S DIVORCE SUIT IS THE TALK OF NEW ENGLAND—DON'T MISS THIS FUNNY SERIES IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

PICKS BALDWIN TO WHIP SAYLOR

By KNOCKOUT.

Our fellow citizen, Matty Baldwin of Charleston, will tonight try to snuff out that tough little lightweight, Kid Saylor, in Indianapolis. Now don't think that a minute that the Bucken Ball boy is going to have an easy time with Saylor, for he is one of the hardest boys that has been developed in the ring out of that State for many years.

When Matty took his last trip out to the City of Eternal Youth, he stopped at at the town for a roundabout bout with this same man that he supposes tonight, and he received some surprise. Saylor stood off Baldwin in great shape, and though Baldwin had the best of the argument, the local newspapers gave Saylor the credit of a draw, if not the shade.

And while we are talking about the boys who fight tonight, we might as well stick in a few words about Sam Langford, who is to fight with Saylor. Sam is a former champion of the world, and he is a very good fighter. He is a very good fighter.

What is a white hope, you ask? I asked little Brando Jones. He answered promptly, without taking so much as a breath. He said that a white hope was a fellow who was white and who was a hope. He said that a white hope was a fellow who was white and who was a hope.

James Coffey, one of the leading fighters out on the Coast, is in a little trouble. That may result, in his retiring from the game. He is a very good fighter, and he is a very good fighter.

But Pupko has started training for it with that little fellow at Barry's. Barry's is a very good fighter, and he is a very good fighter. Barry's is a very good fighter, and he is a very good fighter.

FRANKIE NEIL IN A BAD FIX

By ED W. SMITH.

A poor show of humor, however, is appreciated by Eddie Neil. It is likely to cost Frankie Neil of San Francisco, former lightweight champion of America, a pretty penny, and he is not likely to get it. He is in a bad fix.

Neil had been at the races at Suit Lake City, and according to the story he has lost the Grand James of San Francisco, where he was created, over into possession of a $2 bill that had been rather firmly held by a man in San Francisco.

Told Joke to Friends. This he did and presumably had quite a laugh about it. He said that he had lost a good deal of money, and he was in a bad fix. He was in a bad fix.

Made Trip to Europe. Frankie never was the same after that. He went to Europe, and he was in a bad fix. He was in a bad fix.

But Pupko has started training for it with that little fellow at Barry's. Barry's is a very good fighter, and he is a very good fighter. Barry's is a very good fighter, and he is a very good fighter.

their series this afternoon and place. It is a larger crowd than used the last game will say, as there is a rumor abroad that Whitefeather, son of the Wild Cats, has bet "Eagleback" Snyder, the wonderful "shu-kers" of the Wasps, that he cannot be struck out. Some say that a dime has been wagered, but we refuse to believe it, as we have seen no money put up. Whatever happens to-day will be played up in regular style for to-morrow's paper.

Some of Them Take It Rather Lightly Sometimes

A man who occupies a public office, and who does not care to have his name printed, calls attention to the fact that the doctors take too lightly cases brought before them of children or others bitten by dogs that may have had hydrophobia.

The man calls attention to one recent case in which a child was bitten by a dog, the doctor cauterized the wound, made light of it and told the child to forget about it.

In a few days the child died of hydrophobia, and there appears to be no doubt that it was a genuine case of the awful disease.

The day after this man's letter was received the newspapers described the case of a boy nine years old, attacked and bitten by a mongrel dog. There were very serious lacerations on the child's leg. These were cauterized at a hospital. There was no Pasteur treatment.

The man that writes this suggests that the doctors have no right to treat such cases lightly or to assume, as some of the ignorant do, "that there is really no such thing" as a mad dog.

Our correspondent suggests that the doctors are not interested in the Pasteur treatment for hydrophobia, because there is no profit in it for the doctors. We do not accept this suggestion. Doctors are as conscientious as any other class of men—just about as conscientious, and no more. If you take men in large groups they are about alike.

Doctors do necessarily get accustomed to suffering and pain. It is inevitable that they should view with calmness suffering, which is a daily incident in their lives. It is for the public authorities to impress upon them the importance of taking seriously accidents or illnesses that may result in death.

When a doctor makes light of a case in which a child is bitten by a dog, and when the child dies of hydrophobia as a result, the fact should be impressed upon the doctor very emphatically that it is not right to play with human life.

When, as happens at least once a week, some doctor diagnoses typhoid fever as grippe or indigestion or "nothing in particular," and when a competent physician called in too late helps the man to die quietly and smooths things over out of "professional courtesy toward a fellow physician," there ought to be some public authority that would smooth the path of the "fellow physician" out of the medical profession and into the profession of ditch digging.

There is no more hard-working, conscientious, learned, useful body of men in the world than the really able doctors. And no body of men is more utterly worthless than fifty or seventy-five per cent. of all the doctors.

If the worthless doctors could be eliminated, and the competent doctors kept busy and properly paid, it would be a great thing for the profession as well as the public.

At present it is a fact that the majority of the doctors are unfit to treat any kind of animal, and that the good doctors and the able doctors, from a mistaken sense of professional courtesy, conceal the ignorance and the almost criminal carelessness of the incompetent. Hence the flourishing of "faith cures" under various labels, quacks, etc.

Edwin A. Abbey Is Dead—After Achieving Brilliant Success

That Success He Owed to the Fact That with Absolute Conscientiousness He Always Did His Best

The world says of Abbey, whose death is a loss to art and to all of those that knew him, that he was a great artist. Perhaps he was, perhaps he was not—time will decide that. He was, of course, a great artist compared to the ordinary modern whose work is contemptible. He was not an artist at all compared with the really great geniuses in the world of art. Ten million artists such as Abbey all boiled down could not produce one Leonardo or Raphael. He was not even the greatest of American artists. He was not the equal of Sargent nor of George Innes—Innes was the best of all American painters, probably.

But Abbey was the equal of any man in one thing. He was an absolutely conscientious worker.

Twenty-five years ago when he was making black-and-white illustrations for Harper's he could easily have doubled his income by doing other than his best work. But he sacrificed everything to his fixed determination TO DO HIS BEST. When he illustrated Shakespeare, he not only worked from models exclusively, but he bought the old costumes and the old furniture and had his models pose under the best possible conditions.

He frequently finished and destroyed pictures that seemed in every way admirable to his friends, but that did not satisfy him. In that respect he was like C. D. Gibson, who, fortunately, still lives.

It would have been a good thing if not only young artists, but all young Americans, could have known Abbey and realized what absolutely conscientious work will do for a man. That work shone forth in his fine face of concentration and power, and it shows now in the praise and regret that accompany his death.

IF YOU WORK HARD ENOUGH AND CONSCIENTIOUSLY ENOUGH YOU CANNOT FAIL.

Hard work won't make you a Napoleon, a Rockefeller or an Edison. Hard work could not make of Abbey a Michelangelo.

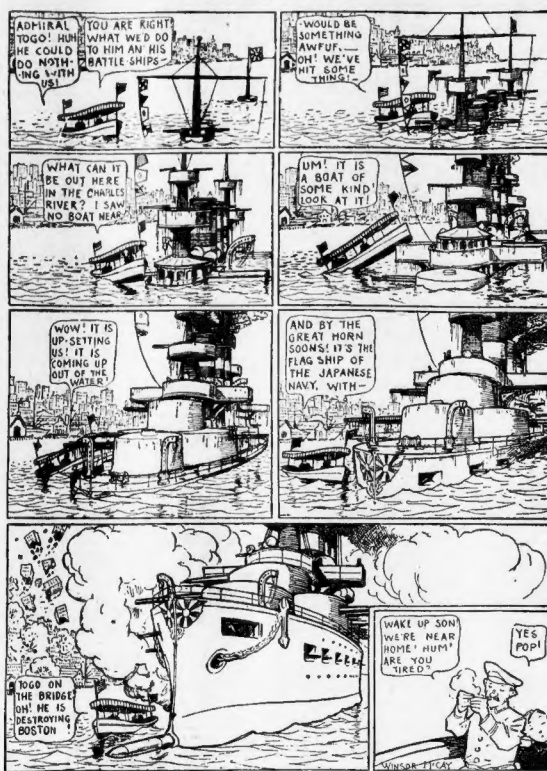

But hard work did make of Abbey a man successful and happy in his lifetime, admired and regretted in his death.

And hard work will do as much for you.

The Keyboard of the Mind: Something About Mental Five-Finger Exercises

Every Thought and Every Word You Use During the Day Is a Touch of the Mental Keyboard Which May Bring Forth Beautiful Harmony or Discordant Sounds.

If you were to not about the study of music you would begin with the practice of finger exercises and scales.

Your first important idea would be to obtain CORRECT methods.

You would watch your teacher and listen to the principles which govern good music, and all the time you gave to your practice would be based on these principles.

It would never seem right to you, when listening to some amateur, or some one who played badly, out of time and tune, to sit down and imitate the faults of the performer.

You would know that right at the time was a waste; and that your own progress must suffer from the senseless proceeding.

Precisely the same result follows in our characters when we waste thought and speech in talking about the faults of others.

Every thought and every word you use during the day is a touch of the mental keyboard, which may bring forth beautiful harmony or discordant sounds. Your character is being shaped by your use of this mental keyboard, and your influence is being felt wherever you go. No matter if you sit silent in a room, yet those who are in your presence feel to a lesser or greater degree just to the nature of the music you practice on your mental keyboard.

The highly advanced and discerning observer will be particularly sensitive to your characteristics; and the more commonplace mind will surely be aware that you are attractive or repulsive, agreeable or disagreeable.

Every moment you give, therefore, to discerning and describing, and depicting the faults and sins and shortcomings of others is just exactly so much effort expended by you in making yourself a discord in the universal harmony which is needed on earth.

And it is just so much time and vital power lost, which might be used by you in bringing perfection, prosperity and success into your life.

It is of course impossible to ignore the faults and stings of every one with whom we come in contact.

We must be annoyed, offended and pained. We must sometimes be disgusted and even angry, as Christ himself became angry, which proved the fact of His human nature about life was One with the Father.

But after we have expressed our righteous indignation, when the special occasion demands it, let us put the matter away from our minds and refuse to dwell upon it in thought or to talk of it.

For in the continual thought of unpleasant things we are shaping our lives to invite other similar occurrences.

Like attracts like, and that of which you think and talk is sure to come to you.

I have heard a brilliant and beautiful girl use a valuable and never to be restored hour in describing the offensive and disagreeable traits of her acquaintances.

She initiated their unpleasant recollections and expatiated upon their faults, all unconscious that she was not only wasting her own time and that of her listeners, but that she was bringing into her life more annoyances and disillusionments of the same nature.

Put the things you do not like away from your mind as much as it is possible to do so.

Turn away from them mentally, just as you would turn away your eyes from ugliness and deformity.

Then a fault force itself upon your attention replace it by a virtue. When any one offends you by word or act, strive to think of the pleasant and admirable qualities which exist in other people of your acquaintance, and send a mental wish to the offender to be like those who have pleased you.

Begin To-day and Refuse to Think or Talk of Disagreeable Things

It becomes necessary at times to tell a friend of a fault. Real friendship bears the test. But after the matter has been over discussed, drop it from your mind and sweet thoughts in Jesus' name.

And by trying your thoughts to these keys of the mind you ever produce good and beautiful and sweet harmonies in your own nature and happy results in your life.

It is easy for me to be the other guy's dream—Er—will some one please lend me four bits?

I am there with advice on the sewing of grain, And I know a sure cure for the plague; I can tell by my health just the date it will rain, And I know how to test a bad egg.

I have nothing to learn in the world of finances, I am just something which nobody can dance, I can tell any better the size of his chance—Will you let me take twenty-five cents?

I know how to handle a wife and a home, I know when a steer's in its prime, I can tell what kills hair on a round, thoughtful dome—Say, won't somebody lend me a dime?

I can tell in advance how elections will go, I can tell home-made yarns that will tickle, When others know nothing I'm Willy I know—Please, somebody, lend me a nickel!

For both England and Ireland, Nature has done much. In their climate, in their geographical outline, in their rich natural resources, it would seem as if both were meant to be equally happy homes. Yet England is rich and powerful, while Ireland is poor and weak. What causes this? For answer read Mr. Galvin's article in next Sunday's AMERICAN on "British Wealth and Irish Poverty—Why and Wherefore."
